Cable to the Standard-Examiner, April 22.—The most important act in European history since the war of 1870, the Germans were the first to form a similar alliance. Otto Von Bismarck, after his victory, made friends with Austria and Italy.

It is the conquered who are the group and taking advantages of conquerors and their extra-territorial life.

But, with Austria and Italy, and are independently united with Russia and Germany's signature made to the treaty published on April 17.

When the dinner bell rang in old-fashioned style, President Harding, escorted by James P. Hornaday, the new president of the club and Washington correspondent of the Indianapolis News, led the procession into the banquet hall.

Former Judge Landis was introduced with an appropriate parody on an old song, "Take Me Out to the Ball Game." Judge Landis explained that a contrivance around his neck was a hot water bottle which he always carried for use in case the fellows who are paying me my salary get cold feet.

BONNIS BILL BOMB.

Between each course of the menu a one-act show was presented. One of these was the discovery of an explosive bomb, which when opened, proved to be the bonus bill.

Another centered upon George Harvey, ambassador to Great Britain, impersonated by a club member, who demanded an opportunity to make a speech.

"President Harding," remarked the ambassador, "is perfectly willing to let George make all the speeches he wants at a Gridiron dinner for reporters are never present."

Van Winkle appeared and was awakened from his sleep with great difficulty.

"Has the Fordney tariff bill passed the senate?" he asked.

"No," was the reply.

TAKES ANOTHER SNOOZE.

"Well," he remarked yawning, "I might as well go to sleep again for another twenty years."

There remains on the one France and Belgium who have undertaken the minimum of protective measures and on the other the little entente, which, due to the lack of organization, it has established itself alone.

They have had better to themselves or rather to free themselves from the consequences of the war.

This is serious chief cause there is nothing opposed to the Anglo-French entente excepts. No political acts are referred to.

EX-CHAIRMAN WHITE IN RAILROAD WRECK.

Wilbur Glenn Voliva, successor to Alexander Dowd, was alleged to have written: "I have proved that the earth is flat with a solid dome. So is the Republican party, and I take the lead." Chairman Charles Chaplin suggested his availability as a distributor of pie. Henry Ford offered his services because as his letter asserted: "I am an expert on rackets."

CHAIRMAN PRESENT.

As the theme of the dinner was the approaching political campaign, the presence of Chairman Adams and Chairman Hull gave additional zest to the jolts impartially given both parties.

The political skit was a combination of songs and dialogue presented by club members seated around a stove in the Squash Club.

"When the men really begin to vote," remarked one of the farmers with tears in his voice, "we will have to buy all of our tobacco from a bootlegger."

A song deplored the retention of the Democratic postmaster and tearfully pleading for the jobs that we are needing," was sung with much spirit. Several pertinent—or impudent—inquries were referred to the man in the moon.

"Why the man in the moon?" some one asked.

"Well," was the reply, "as President Harding passes the buck to congress and congress passes the buck to President Harding, we have to pass the buck to the man in the moon."

Congress was dealt with in a parody on the old song, "O, dear, what can the matter be?"

Formerly this mail was sent on to Ogden to be worked but about six months ago the superintendent at Council Bluffs and destined for Ogden, was used on train No. 15 leaving there at midnight, taken off and the mail held up at that point to be worked at the Council Bluff terminal.

The correspondent states that the general superintendent has ruled that all mail that accumulates from eastern trains excepting that which arrives on train No. 15 over the Burlington and Western Union Railway & Depot company for the building of a terminal station. His present policy, if continued, will make unnecessary the building of the new terminal here.

Ogden Losing Annual Payroll of $80,000 Through Adverse Policy of Railway Mail Service

WITH the discharging of the substitutes and an additional four men from the Ogden railway mail service terminal Saturday, Ogden loses a payroll of approximately $40,000 per year.

Indications point to a further decrease in the force at the terminal and it is understood that before another 30 days have passed an additional $40,000 in payroll per year will have been lost to Ogden and gained by Council Bluffs, and gained by Council Bluffs.

Local officials of the railway mail within five minutes of one another. He also points out that there are but three and one-half hours between the arrival of those two trains and the departure of train No. 9 for the west.

Only about 40 per cent of the mail destined for Utah, Nevada, California and Oregon is carried by trains 15 and 16 and that is sent on to Ogden to be worked at the terminal here.

Until six months ago the third and fourth class mail left Council Bluffs for Ogden every 12 hours leaving there on train No. 9 at noon and on train 19 at midnight.

It is understood that mail that formerly arrived in Ogden on train No. 9 was sent out of Ogden for the west, while it is now held at Council Bluffs for 24 hours.

Local railroad officials are unable to understand the attitude of Superintendent Musgrave at Council Bluffs. A short time ago he came to Ogden and signed a contract with the Ogden Union Railway & Depot company for the building of a terminal station.

His present policy, if continued, will make unnecessary the building of the new terminal here.

OGDEN SCOUT SAVES CHILD FROM DEATH

Harold Yourgelson Acts Swiftly as Girl Falls in Reservoir

TERESA Shimney, 2128 Jefferson avenue, 10-year-old daughter of Mrs. J. Shimney, while playing with four girl playmates near the city reservoir at the head of Twenty-second street Saturday afternoon fell into the water and was rescued from drowning by Harold Yourgelson, 15 years of age, a member of Troop 12 of the Boy Scouts. The rescued girl was given first aid and sent to her home, where she was reported as recovering rapidly.

Scout Yourgelson, whose parents recently arrived in Ogden and who was with 22 Boy Scouts doing field work under the supervision of Scoutmaster J. E. Everett was in the vicinity of the reservoir when he heard the youngsters screaming and ran to the rescue of the child.

He leaped into the water and held the girl's head up until the other scouts arrived with a rope which he fastened under her arms and held her head out of the water while she was being towed to the edge of the reservoir.

All the other Boy Scouts that aided him were Orval Winkler, Alvin Gutzke, Alvin Johnson and Glen Norton.

G. A. Goutes, scout executive, said last night that Scout Yourgelson would undoubtedly receive the life-saving medal awarded to Boy Scouts for bravery, only 15 of which were awarded in the United States last year.

GERMAN PRESIDENT RECEIVES HOUGHTON

At the completion of the conference, Mayor Frank Francis explained that the problem was not one to be solved directly by the commission, but rather by the property owners. He assured the people of the district that the commission would do all in its power to bring about a quick settlement of differences in order that the street might be paved.

Some property owners declared that they should "call the bluff of the traction company" and determine whether or not they would abandon the line.

Others felt that the tracks should not be placed in jeopardy by any such action.

UP TO ABORTIVES.

Secretary Denby in upholding the contract as a means of "conserving the field for future use," declared it had been awarded to the Sinclair interests.

After full consideration of all offers submitted, Denby declared the government had lost "millions of barrels of oil" in its California fields by "private drainage" and faced the same danger at Teapot Dome.

Canvassers to Take Up Collection From Abutting Property Owners

WARM SESSION HELD

Some Declare "Bluff" of Traction Corporation Should Be Called

What was termed by one property owner of upper Twenty-fifth street as a "hasty solution" to the problem of paving upper Twenty-fifth street and retain the street car line, was decided upon Saturday at a special meeting of the city commission and residents of the district in question.

The plan, as finally adopted, was to send a canvasser to every property owner of the district and endeavor to obtain enough money by subscription to pay the traction company's share.
